In a story of the town, house cleanng in Hilo resulting from the appearance of the black plague in Honolula, the Hawaii Herald publishes the following "And this cleaning up crusade brought to light to the various committees things in Hilo which they never knew existed. For instance, down on the makai side of Front street there is a Japanese bath house as well arranged as any you would and anwyhere, for it has drain floors, cement bath and good fittings. So long as the inspector or committee. long as the inspector or committee-man did not go beyond the interior nere was no ground for complaint But there was the matter of drainage; all the waste water went into a cess-pool in the lot back of the place and as this pool was too low for the water as this pool was too low for the water to flow into the sea it simply ran over on to the land and made a pool that became stagnant. I understand Sheriff Andrews oredered the owner to secure a pump and pump the water to an ele-vation that would permit it to run into the sea.

"Dr. Philip Rice had a district that was a veritable Jim Dandy when it came to filth. He was on the makal side of Front street in what is called Jap town. He told me that though he had visited people there professionally for several months he had no idea of the unsanitary condition of the yards until he visited them as a member of the committee. He found filth everywhere and ordered it removed. For my part I guess the Honolulu peo-ple will do their best to prevent the disease spreading."

Aid for Rond Building.

Managers W. G. Walker and Colin McLennan, who have worked so hard to raise enough money by private sub-scription to complete the road at Maulua and make the drive possible from Hilo to Waimea, secured the following amounts from corporations and private parties: Walakea Mill Co., $1000; Hilo Sugar Co., $1000; Onomea Sugar Co., $1000; Pepeekeo Sugar Plantation, $700; Honomu Plantation, $500 Hakalau Plantation, $1000; Laupahoe hoe Sugar Co., $1000; C. McLennan, $500; A. d. Loebenstein, $250; Ookuin l'antation, $500; W. G. Walker, $500; J. m. Horner, $500; H. Hackfeld & Co., $500. Total, $3950.—Hilo Tribune.
